Massive debt no barrier: course

CLIMBING out of a $187,000 debt is no easy task, but business coach Simone Milasas did it.

In a five-day business and personal development event she is co-hosting with Brendon Watt in Noosa this week, Ms Milasas will share with participants the tools with which she credits her success.

From Thursday to next Monday, the Five Days of Change course will share tools of "Access Consciousness" – one of the fastest-growing personal development modalities. The organisers say the five-day program will help unlock limitations and unconscious patterns that have been holding an individual back.

Ms Milasas said she had been at the "creative edge" of business development for more than a decade, while Mr Watt was a "dad with a difference" and a leader in the world of parenting.

"The target of Access is to empower people to know they are capable of changing the world and changing the people around them with the energy they can be," Ms Milasas said. "Everything is possible. The only thing that is stopping you is you."

Mr Wyatt said years ago while participating in an Access Consciousness class, he heard that where you were in your life today was a direct result of the choices you had made up to that point.

"Right now the world is desperate for conscious leaders," he said. "It begins with you being a leader in your life. Imagine what you would do if you knew you couldn't fail?"
